Subject pronouns

nous → we vous → you (pl)
ils → they elles → they Use 'ils' (they) for all masculine nouns. Use 'elles' for all feminine nouns.

Describing people with the verb être

Describing more than one

Use plural forms of adjectives to describe more than one noun:
Il sont contents. They (m, m/f) are pleased.
Elles sont contentes. They (f) are pleased.
 For feminine plural nouns, add-s to the feminine form.

More plural adjectives

Masculine adjectives ending in -eux stay the same in plural:
 Ils sont heureux. They (m, m/f) are happy.
 Feminine adjective forms ending in -euse add -s:
 Elles sont heureuses. They (f) are happy.

Asking WH-questions

Add quand to ask when:
 Ton anniversaire, c'est quand ? When is your birthday?
 Add quel, quelle to ask which:
Nous sommes quel jour ? Which (what) day is it?
Nous sommes quelle date ? Which (what) date is it?

Saying my

There are three words for my: mon, ma, mes.
 They agree with the gender of the possession:
mon problème my problem
ma solution my solution
mes problèmes my problems
mes solutions my solutions
 Use mes for m. and f. plural nouns

Saying what people have with the verb avoir

Plural indefinite article des (some)

Remember! To say 'a' with masculine nouns, use 'un'. Use 'une' with feminine nouns.

To say 'some' (plural) use 'des'.

Il y a des livres.
There are some books.

Il y a des solutions.
There are (some) solutions.

⚠ English can leave out 'some' but in French we always need 'des'.

Adjectives before the noun

Some adjectives go before the noun:
These adjectives refer to beauty, age, good/bad or size:

B un beau jardin a beautiful garden une belle chambre a beautiful bedroom

A un vieux professeur an old teacher une jeune enfant a young (f) child

G une bonne idée a good idea une mauvaise question a bad question

S un grand bureau a big desk une petite maison a small house

Definite article with physical description

In French we can use the definite article 'the' for physical description.
In English, we leave the article out or use 'a', e.g., has a round face.

Il a le visage rond.
He has a round face.

Il a les yeux ronds.
He has round eyes.
